

ICFD2024 Early Career Award

The International Conference on Food Digestion (ICFD2024) is proud to announce the ICFD2024 Early Career Award, sponsored by Food Structure, an Elsevier journal. A prestigious recognition to celebrate the innovation and excellence of young researchers' contributions in the field of food digestion. This distinguished award will be announced during our upcoming conference in the vibrant city of Porto, Portugal, from 9-11 April 2024.

Awards Highlights:

- The esteemed winner will receive a certificate of excellence and 500 EUR prize.
- A unique opportunity awaits the awardee to be recognized by over 300 renowned scientists in the field of food digestion. This is your chance to ignite your career and make a lasting impact on the field.

Eligibility Criteria:

- Open to young scientist at any point in their career, engaged in academia, government or industry, with the age criterion set below 40 years of age as of 11 April 2024;
- Applicants must be first and presenting author of the submitted work, oral or poster, to ensure direct recognition of their contributions;
- The prize will only be paid if the participant attends the ICFD2024 in person.

Evaluation Criteria:

1. Relevance of the CV and motivation letter to the field of food digestion.
2. Originality, scientific value and potential impact of the research findings.
3. Care, quality and clarity of the oral or poster presentation.

Selection Process:

An initial selection of finalists will be made by our esteemed scientific commission panel, based on a careful review of the abstracts, CV and motivation letters submitted. The final decision will be made after the conference presentations, ensuring a comprehensive and fair assessment of each candidate's contribution. The winner will be announced during the closing ceremony.

How to apply:

Upon receiving confirmation of your abstract's acceptance at ICFD2024, proceed with your award application by sending an email to ICFD2024@gmail.com with the subject "ICFD2024 Early Career Award". Your email should include:

1. Your abstract number and title;
2. A short CV (1 page), detailing your academic and professional milestones;
3. A motivation letter (1 page), outlining your future research aspirations and how this award will propel your initiatives in the field.

The deadline for application is on March 25, 2024.